Program Scope

The School of Theatre & Dance offers a comprehensive program of both practical and theoretical courses for undergraduate and graduate students whose professional interests center on a career in professional or educational theatre or dance.

The curriculum provides the student with a foundation for advanced study in theatre or dance studies, teaching, or a career in professional theatre or dance. As a center for the training of future theatre and dance artists, the School is committed to introducing a diversity of theatre and dance traditions and cultures to students. To this end, the School employs its two dedicated theatre spaces, two dedicated dance spaces, and other flexible spaces as learning laboratories in which students collaborate with each other, faculty, and guest professionals. Studio workshops and advanced stage productions in those performance spaces are the culmination of the educational experience.

The School actively seeks and facilitates interdisciplinary programs of study and production with other members of the College of Liberal & Creative Arts as well as with departments and programs from across the campus. The School also encourages and facilitates collaboration with off-campus area theatres and performing arts entities. In these ways, we enlarge students' experiences and open new connections between students, the college, the campus as a whole, and the community, offering students an education grounded in practical professional stage practices as well as diverse on-campus academic and production experiences.

The diverse backgrounds of both faculty and students in the program provide our campus and community with a wealth of theatrical experiences and attractions. Graduates of both programs are successful in professional performing arts companies throughout the nation, with positions of leadership in dance, theatre, television, film, and education.

Fundamental to the major programs is a core of required courses designed to develop a foundation on which students are encouraged to build through elective coursework. Theatre arts students are offered advising guidance in the following areas: performance, play development and dramaturgy, technical theatre and design, or musical theatre. Dance students are able to choose between two areas of focus: Performance/Choreography or Dance Studies.

The minor programs are not a requirement for any credential or degree but are intended to give students an opportunity to pursue an interest in theatre or dance.

The Master of Arts in Theatre Arts provides training for students wishing to expand their knowledge and increase their competence in the fields of history and literature of the theatre, acting, directing, theatre design, and production; seeking teaching credentials where the master's degree is required; and preparing for further graduate work elsewhere.

Facilities

The School produces its plays in four performance spaces: McKenna Theatre, a proscenium stage with orchestra pit and fly system is the largest theatre in the College of Liberal & Creative Arts with a seating capacity of 701. The Little Theatre is a smaller proscenium stage with a fly system and a seating capacity of 218. The Lab is a black box theatre with a seating capacity of 55. The Studio is a 2,500 square foot, sprung floor facility supporting dance, movement classes, and rehearsals, and serves as a flexible performance space for dance and theatre pieces alike.

The performance spaces are supported by outstanding technical facilities. Theatre Arts classes and production work are conducted, with professional supervision, in the Scene/Paint Shop, Costume Shop, Properties Shop, Lighting Laboratory, and Sound Design Laboratory.

Career Outlook

Career opportunities in theatre and dance arts include performance and technical positions in professional, regional, and community theatres and dance companies, as well as the areas of film and television for actors, directors, stage managers, designers (lighting, costume, scenery, and props), and craftspersons (stitcher, carpenter, props artisan).

Teaching positions range from elementary and high school theatre and dance classes through community college and university curricula in all aspects of the dramatic and dance arts. Other career possibilities include such diverse fields as advertising, design (interior, fashion, display), drama and dance therapy, and recreation.
